DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The description of the storage modulus is impossible to ascertain from the description in the specification.

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The claim is drawn to a toner "using" the masterbatch of Claim 1. It is unclear, confusing, and indefinite as to the positive recitation of the masterbatch in the toner. The Examiner suggests deleting "using" and inserting —comprising— therefore.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

6. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Sato (JP 05-224461). Sato teaches a toner with the same physical properties and relation of a polyester glass transition temperature and softening point. Paragraph 20 of the machine translation corresponds to the same temperature ranges and the tables between paragraphs 32-38 correspond to the masterbatches of the tables on pages 17-18 of the instant application. It is inherent that the same polyesters would have the same storage modulus.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

7. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

8. Claims 4-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sato (JP 05-224461) as applied to claims 1-3 above, and further in view of each of Yamakami (3,998,747), Katagiri (2003/0203304), and Taya (EP 0800117). Sato is discussed above. Sato does not particularly teach additional resins. Yamakami (claims), Katagiri (paragraph 128), and Taya (pages 4-7) each teach combinations of polyesters with other polyols for similar toner applications that have the same physical characteristics of softening point. Taya additionally suggests a related corresponding storage modulus. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine the teachings of each of Yamakami, Katagiri, and Taya with the teachings of Sato to provide a toner masterbatch with the required resins and physical characteristics because of the known use of such in toner applications and the expectation of similar results due to the relation of the polyester glass transition temperature and softening point.
